

CHÂTEAU

WEDDING
CHÂTEAU

Nov
5.99

Holiday Edition

101

EXQUISITE
DÉCOR IDEAS

Artistry
Meets
Identity

A WEDDING
AT THE CHÂTEAU

The Venue

for going out

all things Gold

3 5 4 6 8 9 5 0 1 8 7 8 4

NEW ERA OF BRIDAL STYLE

ARTISTRY MEETS IDENTITY

By Laura Ryan
Photographs by Ella Johnson

The modern bride is rewriting the rules of bridal style. No longer confined to traditional colour palettes or classic wedding-party florals, she's seeking a look that feels deeply personal—one that blends artistic expression with contemporary elegance.

Today's bride wants more than beauty; she wants meaning, artisanship, and a sense of identity woven into every choice she makes.

In 2025 and 2026, we're seeing a powerful shift toward bold, imaginative accessories that transform the entire bridal aesthetic. Heirloom-inspired veils, and couture gloves are taking center stage. Textures are richer, silhouettes more daring, and materials more intentional—from embroidery to pearls in unexpected forms. Brides are gravitating toward pieces that tell a story, honour artistry, and create a look that feels truly unforgettable. Every wedding detail is curated with purpose. Whether it's mixing historical influence with modern minimalism, embracing colour through statement shoes or jewelry, incorporating bespoke floral design as wearable art, today's bridal style is defined by individuality. Explore these elevated trends—and many more—in our upcoming featured articles from real weddings at LE CHÂTEAU.

A WEDDING AT THE CHÂTEAU

“Curated Not Coordinated: The Shift Toward Collectible Textures in Tablescaping”

Jacquard and richly textured linens that feel pulled from historic estates and European salons, are redefining the black-tie tablescape. Brides are favouring fabrics with story: tone-on-tone baroque patterns, raised jacquard motifs that catch the candlelight, and embroidered overlays are making a triumphant return. These tactile linens ground the table design in old-world luxury while offering a fresh counterbalance to modern florals and minimalist plating. These fabrics anchor the table, creating a tablescape that feels collected, considered, and exquisitely curated rather than merely coordinated.

A RETURN TO HERITAGE

“This new era of décor isn’t about staging a theme; it’s about invoking a mood—one that feels intimate, luxuriously lived-in, and unmistakably personal. In the evolving world of luxury weddings, décor is no longer simply decorative—it is atmospheric, sensory, and deeply rooted in storytelling. Brides are looking beyond trends and into history, drawing on heirloom textures, vintage lighting, and estate-inspired accents to create celebrations that feel intimate, curated, and timeless with a personal touch. This lighting that whispers rather than shouts, turns grande dining into luminous vignettes and fills the reception with a sense of warmth and story. Vintage lamps are quietly transforming wedding lighting, while Art Deco crystal fixtures cast nostalgic sparkle across glassware and porcelain.

Photo by Laura Ryan, from the wedding of Liza & Will at Le Château.